Summary: Without the Knowledge of Grammar a language can't be learnt properly. Bengali Language and Grammar are very much influenced by Sanskrit grammar as both the languages have lots of similarities. Bengali grammar was first written by Nathaniel Brassey Halhed, an English scholar in the year 1778. The name of the book is 'A Grammar of the Bengali Language'. The historical aspect of the book was vividly discussed by the speaker in the webinar. After Mr. Halhed Raja Rammohan Roy wrote 'Goudiya Byakoron' in the year 1833 and Iswarchandra Vidyasagar wrote two books on Sanskrit Grammar--- 'Sanskrito byakoroner Upokromonika' and 'Byakoron Koumodi'. The speaker mentioned though the books were written on Sanskrit Grammar but both the books influenced a lot to write Bengali grammar in 19th century. The similarities and dissimilarities between Sanskrit and Bengali grammar were also discussed by the speaker. The evolution of Bengali grammar till 21st century was highlighted in the webinar giving special emphasis on some outstanding grammar books written in Bengali. The speaker also compared the grammar of Halhed, Rammohon and Vidyasagar.
